

Arrested Motion

Preview: “The Boneyard Project: Return Trip” @ Pima Air and Space Museum

Posted on January 15, 2012 by sleepboy

With only a couple more weeks to go before the opening for The Boneyard Project: Return Trip, artists are hard at work getting their plane parts painted – especially those who have whole planes to cover (DC Super 3 planes painted by How & Nasm, Nunca, and Retna, a C97 cockpit by Saner, a C45 plane by Faile, and a Lockheed VC 140 Jetstar by Andrew Schoultz). These retired military planes and nose cones will be on display at the show opening on January 28th at the Pima Art and Space Museum in Tucson, Arizona and will be grouped with presumably some previous work from the Eric Firestone Gallery’s Nose Job show last year (photos here).

More looks at the plane Schoultz is working on as well as a peek at what RETNA (featured) and Eric White (interviewed) are up to after the jump...