

Los Angeles Times

Arts & Entertainment /
Arts & Culture / Carolina
A. Miranda

Datebook: Cat art, cosmic collages and sculptures that purify water

Carolina A.
Miranda

LOS ANGELES TIMES

carolina.miranda @latimes.com

FOLLOW CAROLINA A.
MIRANDA ▼

August 14, 2014

“Clayton Brothers: Open to the Public,” at Mark Moore Gallery.

Since the 1990s, brothers Rob and Christian Clayton have been known for producing slightly psychedelic collages that employ just about anything they can lay their hands on: wood, canvas, paper, paint and fabric. (Think: a cosmic landscape featuring a disintegrating head and a pop-infused visions of cut fruit.) For their new show at Mark Moore, the L.A.-based duo have created a series of works that look at the habitués and objects of a thrift shop in Sunland. Opens Saturday with a 6 p.m. reception. Show runs through Sept. 27. 5790 Washington Blvd., Culver City, markmooregallery.com.

Source:

<http://www.latimes.com/entertainment/arts/miranda/la-cam-datebook-cat-art-sculptures-that-purify-water-20140814-column.html>